

Carl Prekopp in Webern and Me.
Photography: Harald Haugan

Classical Assassins

*Beethoven and Me. Schubert and Me. Webern and Me.
Bach, Handel and Me. Tchaikovsky and Me*

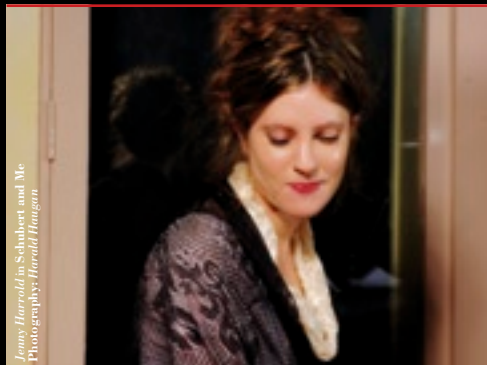

By Jonathan Lennie
March 15 - April 1, 2007

“An original idea that has been treated with intelligence.”
Radio Times (Choice of the day)

A joinedupwriters production

the red hedgehog

As heard in last October's series on BBC Radio 4, the bit players of history step up to recount their role in the demise of some of the great composers.

Jenny Harold in Schubert and Me
Photography: Harold Hongan

Robert Lockhart in Bach, Handel and Me
Photography: Chris Eastwell

Beethoven and Me

"I meant to kill myself, but in the end I killed him instead. It doesn't mean I didn't love him; he was my father, after all."

Schubert and Me

"He wrote songs for me – at least, he said he did."
A young woman reflects on her brief encounters with the youthful composer.

Mozart and Me

What is it about the purity of an Austrian composer's music that still disturbs yet entralls a former GI as he performs an annual ritual for the last time?

Bach, Handel and Me

John Taylor was the self-proclaimed "Casanova of the Eye". However, there were two operations that didn't go quite to plan.

Tchaikovsky and Me

In November 1893, Pyotr Illych Tchaikovsky drank a glass of unboiled water – a sure way to contract cholera. An accident or a death sentence?

Performance Hours

March 15 - April 1
Tuesday 13 March (Preview: £8)

Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sundays at 8pm
Sunday matinee at 3:30pm

Note:

Classical Assassins comprises five short pieces, of which four will be presented at each performance, with the exception of 13th, 15th March and 1st April when all five will be performed.

Tickets

£10: Green Travel Discount
(using public transport, low emissions vehicle, bicycle, on foot)

£12: For Drivers
(includes £2 towards venue purchase of an electric vehicle and solar panels)

Booking Information:

Credit card and online bookings www.theredhedgehog.co.uk

Reserve Tickets:

Tel: 020 8348 5050
(messages can be left and we will call to confirm)
E-mail: theatre@theredhedgehog.co.uk

Location / Travel information:

The Red Hedgehog Bus:
255-257 Archway Road 43, 134, 263 (50 yards)
Highgate

London N6 5BS Parking:
Highgate Station

Tube: Wheelchair Accessible
Highgate (100 yards)

Graphic Design:

www.brainwash.me.uk